

The Eling Experience PROJECT volunteer

With its Historic Grade II* Listed Tide Mill, Visitor Centre, Mill Café and Outdoor spaces, the Eling Tide Mill Experience has a number of exciting new opportunities for enthusiastic people to join the team when it re-opens next Spring.

We have a rare opportunity to be a 'Volunteer Miller' with training in the dwindling skill of milling.

The voluntary role will embark on theoretical and practical training, learning all aspects of the process of milling from how the tide works, the machinery, down to flour quality.

You would be unlikely to have ever milled before, however, we would like to hear from you if you either come from a background in engineering or if you have been involved practically with machinery (as a job or just as a hobby). However, the most important quality you can bring is an interest in milling and a passion for heritage.

For full details of this role, including the job description and application/ registration forms please visit elingexperience.co.uk.

For more information or an informal discussion please contact Helen Robinson, Eling Experience Manager on 023 8042 4006.

Closing date for applications Wednesday 15 November 2017
